Roanoke Advocate.

The following Communication, from a gentleman largely interested in the prosperity of Fayetteville, contains many valuable suggestions, which will at once attract the attention of our town readers.

FOR THE CAROLINA OBSERVER.

Mr. Hale: I am among those who are fully sensible of our multiplied losses by the late desolating Fire—yet feel no despondency—for we live under the protection of the Federal Constitution—within the influences of American freedom—and occupy a place possessing many natural advantages, that are susceptible of profitable improvement, and most easily of tasteful embellishments. A few suggestions of the kind may not be unacceptable to your readers.

But first of the means to preserve us from fire hereafter.—There are very few towns that can be more effectually protected from fire, at a small expense, than Fayetteville. With two Creeks winding through the town, and Springs at the base of Haymount and the adjoining hills, amply sufficient for supplying cisterns in the intermediate streets by aqueducts, how easy it is to give every security to property here that may be felt in any place? The Town Commissioners should at once procure two or three Fire Engines of the very best construction, and a Hose and Ladder Company ought to be formed. Hereafter, let the time and money spent in Military Parades be given to Fire Companies—and one composed of active Negroes, selected and directed by the Town Constable or some white man, is an experiment well worth a trial. Premiums may be held out to reward those Slaves who distinguish themselves by prompt and great exertions at Fires. I am sure that, whatever may be their apathy and negligence in common, they would, upon such occasions, exert themselves well, and it would immediately correct an erroneous opinion which I know prevails amongst the Northern Insurance Offices, (and which led in fact, to the increase of their premiums and prevented some of our sufferers from being insured) viz., that our slaves are incendiaries, and require to be watched during fires, instead of rendering assistance.

If the body of the town is rebuilt of wood, and dwellings with their kitchens and offices are crowded in the midst, it will be foolish to cherish the hope that we are to be exempted from recurrences of devastating fires, and we must calculate that the tale of the late calamity will extend far and wide—will awaken sympathy, but will also leave a lasting impression;—and no where will the impression last longer than in the Insurance offices. Of course Insurances on property here, will be impracticable, or at most exorbitant rates.

It is greatly to be desired, that in the crowded parts, brick buildings should be erected, or at least brick fronts. The latter plan would be cheap, would resist fire from the opposite side of the street better than frame stores and look much better. Brick houses are cooler in summer and warmer in winter;—when small, as economical as wooden ones, and more easily insured by 50 per cent. of the premium.

One of the simplest means for preventing fire from crossing streets, or extending to detached houses, is the planting of trees, which was exhibited at the late fire—as it had often been before elsewhere.—Let close rows of trees be planted this winter, along the side walks, (and if the main streets could be widened, a row, not so close, in the centre,) they will, in future years, be a good protection; they will beautify the town, and render the side walks more comfortable. The Horse Chesnut is a beautiful tree, of long life; the Sycamore, the Willow, the Pride-of-China, &c., are most desirable for quick growth and shade.

The Aqueducts should be owned by the town, and besides supplying cisterns for the Fire Engines, to afford the citizens water at the smallest expense

As it has been determined to place the market upon the old spot, it appears to me, that a Brick Building, slated, two stories high, about 55 feet square—the upper story to be used for a Town Hall and the meetings of the Commissioners,—the lower story to be paved as formerly for a market, with four rooms in the corners—two of them for Fire Engines and two for offices for the Town Clerk and Town Constable,—and a Town Clock in the Bellfry.

If the streets require alterations—to be widened, straightened, or extended—now is the time for attending to it. One of the most obvious improvements is the extension of Donaldson street across Hay Street to Union Street.

It is probable that a large amount of money will be contributed by our sympathising fellow Countrymen; and I trust that the whole amount will not be paid immediately to the applicants;—some fund should certainly be established for the future support of the poor, that there may be as little taxation as possible hereafter upon those who do not apply for or require assistance; and it will be wise in the gentlemen who have this delicate trust, to think also of the prospects of the Town, and to apply a part to the restoration of the Town property.

A NATIVE.

FOR THE OBSERVER.

Mr. Editor: In your account of the destruction of Fayetteville, you promise at some future day, to do justice to the conduct of the coloured population on that eventful day.—As your other duties have probably prevented an attention to the subject, permit me to relate an anecdote or two, which may perhaps serve as an example to others to do likewise. Many were the instances of unswerving devotion to the interests of the master. The following was related to me by an eye-witness: A slave engaged in removing his master's goods was called upon to go into a Store to help carry out the Books. He refused, pleading his duty to his master. It was further urged and refused, until he was finally seized and about to be thrust into the Store by force, when his master came up and released him from his situation by assuming the duty he was called upon to perform.

In another case, a Slave employed about his master's premises, was offered a reward in money if he would destroy a part of his master's property which it was feared would communicate to adjoining property. His reply was, that he saw its destruction was necessary, and he therefore did it, but could not be prevailed upon to receive the reward.

The hero of the last anecdote which I shall relate at present, is a free man of colour, a respectable mechanic. A gentleman gave him a hundred dollar note as a reward if he would save a certain building which was threatened. His utmost efforts proved abortive; whereupon he came voluntarily forward and returned the money.

These simple circumstances exhibit a degree of devotion, of disinterestedness, and honesty, which are not always found among the whites. When it is recollected how long it is since we have had a fire, how rare a thing house-breaking is, how quiet and peaceful our streets are on the Sabbath and at night, I think we may fairly claim for our coloured population a character for morality, for faithfulness, and for contentment, not equalled by that of any place in the country.

B. W. HEWSON,

June 13, 1831 Petersburg, Va.

New York, June 10.

VERY LATE FROM ENGLAND.

The fast sailing ship Corinthian, Captain Bennett, came up yesterday from Liverpool, bringing advices to the 13th May, inclusive.

The following is the latest account of the markets at Liverpool:

Liverpool, 13th May, 1831.

We had rather more inquiry yesterday for Cotton, in consequence of some export orders; prices remain without alteration.

All descriptions of Grain are dull of sale. New Orleans Flour has been sold at 32s. 6d. and New York Canal at 35s. per brl. duty paid.

We copy from the two evening papers the following items of intelligence, derived from Liverpool papers of the 12th and 13th May:

Private letters from Berlin, by the Hamburg steamer, at Liverpool, state that there had been three days' fighting, and the brave Poles had been defeated, with the loss of 8000 prisoners and 2000 killed. It also appears, that Gen. Dwernicki had escaped the Russians, and has been joined by 9,000 men; previous to which his army consisted of 12,000 men.

There appears to be no doubt of the defeat of Gen. Sierauski by Kreutz; all accounts, Polish and German, concur in it. From the position in which the armies now are, a very few days must bring some decisive intelligence.

The Standard, on the anthority of private letters, speaks confidently of the defeat of the Poles, and goes so far as to assert that Warsaw was ready to open its gates to Diebitsch. Humanity shudders and trembles for the fate of the bravest people in Europe.

Later.—The Pacific, arrived at New York, has brought Liverpool papers to the 17th May.

The last accounts from the seat of war, left the Russians retreating, pursued by the Poles, annoyed by a constant skirmishing, and weakened by disease and scarcity of provisions.

France, or rather Paris, has been disturbed anew, and appears restless. On the 11th May a public dinner was given, "at which," says the London Courier, "the most furious cries for the immediate erection of a Republic were vociferated; and as our private accounts add, DEATH TO LOUIS PHILIP was drunk with enthusiasm."

Belgium remains as at the last accounts—Prince Leopold yet hesitating about its crown.

The progress of Reform in England was going on most triumphantly. Of 539 members already returned, the difference in favor of reform was, according to the Courier, 139.

LONDON CORN MARKET—May 13.

The large accumulation of Grain, by the continuation of fresh arrivals, has produced, in combination with American Flour, almost a stagnation in the market, and to effect sales in Wheat lower prices must be taken.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS—May 16.

COTTON.—There was a fair inquiry for Cotton, last week, but the holders being disposed to meet the demand freely, a slight decline may be noticed in the prices of American descriptions, which we quote ½d. per lb. lower during the last fortnight.

Flour.—The Richmond Compiler of Monday, gives the following gloomy view of the Flour Market.

The Flour Market was dull enough before the arrival of the Corinthian. We are afraid that Flour will in consequence of her accounts, go a shade lower.—Our reports from New York, (previous to the arrival of the Corinthian] were of an unfavorable character. Losses would fall on several who dealt largely in the article. Niles' Weekly Register of Saturday last, says: "All hopes of the British market for Flour seem abandoned. A letter received by the editor from N. York, gives reason to fear a pretty general crush of the speculators, and expresses an opinion that Flour may descend as low as four dollars a barrel." Perhaps this is too sombre a view of the subject—but in any event, the market is overstocked in proportion to the present demand—and we fear there will be loss and embarrassment, upon several worthy merchants.

Domestic Industry.—A gentleman residing in this neighborhood made his appearance in town, a few days ago, attired in a complete suit of silk—the product of his own filatory; the whole process of culture, spinning, weaving, and making, have been performed on his own farm, and by his own family. The fabric, in appearance, nearly resembles Angola, but is much softer, and evidently a superior description of goods. It surpasses any domestic fabric of the kind we have ever seen. The suit is gray mixed, and consists of coat, vest, pantaloons, and stockings.

Washington (N. C.) Union.

We learn that William E. Blaney, of Wilmington, has been appointed Cashier of the Branch of the State Bank in that place, vice Robert H. Cowan, resigned.—Ral. Reg.

CONGRESSIONAL.—Bartlett Shipp, Esq., of Lincoln county, is announced as a candidate for Congress, in opposition to Mr. Conner.
